Considerations of Swearing and Cursing.

ALthough I would wish souldiers to avoyd all manner of oathes and imprecations, according to our blessed Saviours command: because piety is a prime ornament in a warriour, and that wretched custome most impious: yet I desire them seriously to consider of some particulars

lars much in use, which are of most odious consequence: whereby God is offended, their soules and reputations deeply wounded, and the just cause of a King much weakened.

There are two common oathes that usurpe the bloud and woundes of Christ, which he was faine to pay downe upon the baile for our sinnes; and yet as if other formes were not deformed enough, nough, even the price of our redemption must bee daily, and houely lavisht away, in this unthrifty kind of transgression. Ponder well, if this be not one way of trampling the blood of Christ, under our prophane feet.

Next to remit thy selfe to Confusion, and Damnation, is so ordinary; as if it cost no more to redeeme thy soule, then to destroy it: or as if there were not

For that God take mee, is better then the Devill take mee, a good prayer may be spoiled by misapplicaticonsider how you utter it.

to make it a filmouth is to take Gods name in vaine:
to

to use, it that whē we speake a curse. For God take mee if it be not so, is God refuse mee if I doe not lye; and he take mee if it be so, is he refuse mee if I speake truth.

Take heed of these things, take God in your mind, not his name so pro-
